Kilgore provides sophisticated employment services to chief executives. Because of our established practices in securities, intellectual property and employment litigation, Kilgore gives experienced and practical advice to officers and directors on employment contracts, non-compete agreements, non-solicitation provisions, incentive compensation and separation agreements.

Because Kilgore often represents individuals, rather than companies, Kilgore is rarely conflicted from representing officers. Corporate lawyers frequently refer their top executives to Kilgore.

"I refer cases to Kilgore & Kilgore because I know the firm's history and reputation. I specifically refer cases to Ted Anderson because he is thorough and a good advocate. He is a strong lawyer, tough negotiator, and has a practical approach. Ted brings a good business sense to matters that other attorneys do not have. He has great business presentation - sophisticated and approachable.

In my experience in referring clients to Ted, they have been very pleased. One he has taken the case, he values it accurately."
